

March 20, 2016

Michael C. Hall and Lena Hall Rehearse Radiohead Songs for Tribute Concert

A mash-up and "Ripcord" prior to the one-night-only event in New York City

Last night, Michael C. Hall ("Dexter," "Six Feet Under") and Lena Hall, who co-starred in a recent Broadway production of Hedwig and the Angry Inch, performed a one-night-only event called "Radiohead: Obsessed" at New York's Café Carlyle. They played songs from the whole Radiohead catalogue, from 1992's Pablo Honey to 2011's The King of Limbs. Watch them rehearse "Ripcord" and a mash-up in the playlist below.

Lena Hall has covered Radiohead songs before. Michael C. Hall was recently the star of the late David Bowie's musical, Lazarus—one of Bowie's final projects.

Radiohead recently announced a world tour as they gear up to possibly release a new album. In January, fans speculated that a new album was imminent when it emerged the group had registered a new company, Dawn Chorus LLP.

<http://pitchfork.com/news/64250-michael-c-hall-and-lena-hall-rehearse-radiohead-songs-for-tribute-concert/>

Pitchfork

March 20, 2016

Read "19 Unreleased Radiohead Songs That Could Be on Their Next Album" on the Pitch.

<http://pitchfork.com/news/64250-michael-c-hall-and-lena-hall-rehearse-radiohead-songs-for-tribute-concert/>